Chapter 1

Setting and Activity

Objective: Drawing a concept

Activity

Read the description that follows. On a piece of paper, draw your concept of what the island looks like.

They had guessed before that this was an island: clambering among the pink rocks, with the sea on either side, and the crystal heights of air, they had known by some instinct that the sea lay on every side. But there seemed something more fitting in leaving the last word till they stood on the top, and could see a circular horizon of water.

Ralph turned to the others. "This belongs to us." It was roughly boat-shaped: humped near this end with behind them the jumbled descent to the shore. On either side rocks, cliffs, treetops and a steep slope: forward there, the length of the boat, a tamer descent, tree-clad, with hints of pink: and then the jungly flat of the island, dense green, but drawn at the end to a pink tail. There, where the island petered out in water, was another island; a rock, almost detached, standing like a fort, facing them across the green with one bold, pink bastion. The boys surveyed all this, then looked out to sea. They were high up and the afternoon had advanced; the view was not robbed of sharpness by mirage.

"That's a reef. A coral reef. I've seen pictures like that." The reef enclosed more than one side of the island, lying perhaps a mile out and parallel to what they now thought of as their beach. The coral was scribbled in the sea as though a giant had bent down to reproduce the shape of the island in a flowing chalk line but tired before he had finished. Inside was peacock water, rocks and weeds showing as in an aquarium; outside was the dark blue of the sea. The tide was running so that long streaks of foam tailed away from the reef and for a moment they felt that the boat was moving steadily astern.

Jack pointed down. "That's where we landed." Beyond falls and cliffs there was a gash visible in the trees; there were the splintered trunks and then the drag, leaving only a fringe of palm between the scar and the sea. There, too, jutting into the lagoon, was the platform, with insect-like figures moving near it.

- Look for the general shape of the island.
- Place the mountain they're standing on where you feel it is.
- Include the rock, almost detached, that looks like a fortress.
- Visualize the beach and the platform where they gathered, the lagoon, and the coral reef a mile offshore.
- Indicate the scar made by the plane's crash.

Probing Deeper: The plane that crashed with the schoolboys on board represents civilization, with its technical achievements and the power to destroy and kill. The island is an untouched paradise set off from the larger world. In this way, it becomes a "microcosm" of what the larger world is and once was. Considering this, what does the scar across island symbolize? Write a short paragraph to respond.

Chapters 1 – 4Writing and Theme

Objective: Writing a poem based on incidents in the text on one of the novel's themes

Activity

Select two or three of the following quotes from the story to include as a line in a two- or three-stanza poem that you write. Tie each poem to one of the two following themes: Loss of Innocence—Ralph Grows Up or Civilized Man versus Savage Man.

Line Possibilities for Inclusion in the Poems:

- ...with the directness of genuine leadership
- "This belongs to us."
- "But there isn't a beastie!"
- "Acting like a crowd of kids!"
- "I got the conch—"
- "Him that talked about the snakes."
- "I thought I might kill."
- "...people were never quite what you thought they were."
- "...a bowl of heat and light."
- ...their wide white flowers glimmering...
- ...the taboo of the old life.
- The mask compelled them.
- "They'll see our smoke."
- "Kill the pig. Cut her throat. Spill her blood."
- ...so indefinable and so effective.
